Workshop to foster publications in Engineering Design

Objective

This Workshop aims at helping researchers transform their presented papers from ICED 2015 Conference into high quality journal submissions.

It also offers an opportunity to the research communities working in the field of Design (Engineering Science and Management Science) to share their point of view.

For the authors, the main benefit of attending the workshop is the constructive feedback they will receive on their papers. Thus, they should be able to rework their papers for direct submission to a journal through the regular review process.

Content

The concept of the workshop is to gather around a table one editor and 4 to 6 authors in order to discuss the quality of their publications and to suggest ways of improvement.

The Editors of the following journals have already agreed to attend again the workshop this year:

- CoDesign (Taylor and Francis)
- Computers in Industry (Elsevier)
- Design Studies (Elsevier)
- Journal of Design Research (Inderscience)
- Journal of Engineering Design (Taylor and Francis)
- Research in Engineering Design (Springer)
- Technovation (Elsevier)

Organization

Plenary Session

It includes a panel of the editors' discussion with all participants, providing an opportunity for the participants to ask questions to editors for a better understanding of how to enhance their chances of success to publish in peer reviews.

Small Group Sessions

Two types of small group sessions will be proposed

→ Discussions between one of the editors and 4 to 6 authors on their research paper to provide feedbacks and advise to improve it. Each author presents his research paper project. The editor acts as an adviser. The authors act as peer reviewers for the paper of the other participants.

→ Discussions between 2 editors and 4 to 6 participants on a specific issue, such as, what is a good introduction, why and how the research methodology have to be described, how to present literature review.

Highlights from past PUBLISH-ED Workshops

Since the creation of the PUBLISH-ED workshop in 2011, the Editors in Chief consider this event as useful and innovative and have pleasure to take part to each edition.

We welcome 40 to 50 participants coming from 10 to 14 different countries.

The results of the participants' follow-up survey from the past editions showed that 80% of the respondents used the outputs gathered from the workshop to rewrite their paper and submitted this revised version to a journal.

Participants and Editors enjoyed the two days of discussions but also the walk and dinner in the mountains
